Erica 's Core Practices

Complex Commercial Litigation

Erica has held nearly every position there is to hold in a law firm. She started as a receptionist, moved up to legal assistant, became a paralegal, and then went to law school. As an attorney, Erica manages a complex litigation caseload in Colorado state and federal courts, representing construction industry professionals, developers, and businesses. She has acted as lead counsel in a wide variety of cases, developing and executing litigation strategy, advising clients on case valuation and risk assessment, preparing pleadings, managing discovery, participating in mediation and settlement negotiations, drafting dispositive motions, coordinating expert witnesses, and trying cases before judges and juries.
